Proofs & Mockups

All custom projects will be subject to final artwork approval prior to production. Customers will receive digital proofs to be reviewed for approval. Changes to this artwork must be received in writing. The proofs will then be adjusted and resubmitted for approval.

1. Projects Using Process Colors (Cyan, Magenta, Yellow, and Black) with or without Spot Colors

After digital proofs using process colors are approved, a hard copy proof will be sent for color approval. These proofs must be signed and returned to Kaya before the project can progress to plate production. These proofs will be used to match colors internally.

2. Projects Using Only Spot Colors

When digital proofs using only spot colors are approved, they can proceed to plate production. However, hard copy proofs of these are available upon request. Typically these colors will be matched to the Pantone Plus digital library rather than the proof, unless indicated otherwise by the customer.

3. Projects Requiring Color Matching

Customers who require that their proofs match previously printed material must provide samples using the requested colors or images. These projects will be color-corrected to match internally. A hard copy proof with the final process colors will be sent for approval and must be signed and returned before the job is produced. Roll-outs will be provided for special custom spot colors that need to be matched and will also be sent for signed approval. The signed roll-out must also be returned before production can proceed.

4. Projects Received With Submitted Hard Copy Proofs

When a hard copy proof is provided by customers, Kaya will match the proof internally. Digital and physical mock-up services are available for customers to preview simulations of their projects prior to production. Color separation proofs and color roll-outs are also available. Fees may apply to some services; please inquire for additional details. Once plate production has begun, the customer is responsible for any changes to the artwork that require new plates or production time.
